Honokone, July 13rm, 1905.

WE are not sufficiently informed of the desires and intentions of the Colonial Government to be able to say, whether the suggestions in "Spectaton's" letter are as valuable as they are interesting. Certainly to the unofficial eye there is much that is attractive in our correspondent's picture of quite possible developments in the New Territory which has now been under British care for more than half a dozen years and we have little doubt that the responsible officers would be as pleased as "SPECTATOR" to see the country opened up in some such way. Following our correspondent's proposal step by step upon the map, wo note that his auxiliary line would approximately follow the line of the bridle road from Sham-chun, southward along the western borders of the Lung-kwat-tau district into the area marked Shap-pat-heung, bending westward to avoid the hilly country and to intersect the populous valley that runs south to San-hu-wai in Castle Peak Bay. Apparently about two thirds of the route is covered by existing roads, good main roads-for China; and it comes in contact with about fifty villages. and towns, nestling in fertile and productive valleys. We understand our correspendent's idea to be that a single line so laid down would very much expedite the making of the main line that has to connect Canton with Kowloon by a more direct route. He pointed out to us that the obvious way to deliver railway material for delivery at Sham-chun was to unship it at the mouth of the river entering Deep Bay on the east but there is not enough water there for because of its soundings, but because of its deep indentation of the land. Across the estuary of that river, for which the cartographers appear to have no name yet, is an awkward bar; and even supposing a laden. steamer gets up river safely, it must hurry back before the tide falls, if it does not wish to rest till next tide on the mud. Asked if Sha-t'au-kok, a town on the opposite side of the peninsula, in Starling Inlet, was not equally "obvious," he admitted that it was; but said the eight miles between that and Sham-chun offered more engineering difficulties than the eighteen mile route proposed by himself. "Besides," he pointed out, " look at the country to be opened up. A line from Castle Peak Bay will pay for itself while the trank line is building." If any private syndicate had constructed a light railway through this western territory, they would non only have carned good dividen ls; but would in all probability have been able to sell for a good price to the Canton-Kowloon Company, who would have seen its desirability if only as a means of. transport for their own, majorial. All this to us oppears plausible enough and the only thing needed seems to be expert confirmation that the route is, indeed, as free from engineering objections and costly obstacles as our correspondent thinks it is. If, in short, this enterprise is practic " able, it should be profitable, and it appears immense success. to be desirable. Of course, it will occur to the minds of many readers that the desirability of developing this territory wil not appeal so strongly to the owners of property on the island. The longer that Hongkong remains the focus point of affairs. the longer will island interests possess extraordinary, value. But, that argument would also exclude Kowloon, and Kowloon is advancing. It cannot be long, railway or no milway, before the blooming district of Tai-po-hū and Kowloon join hands. There is undoubtedly a great future awaiting the territory lying between Deep Bay, Tole Harbour, Sham-Chur, and Hong-ham.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY AT PORFULAM ROAD.

While it is difficult to realise of what use the queue is to its owner, it certainly is very useful-Over a thousand Chinese employed in the to bandits who attempt to molest him, as was exemplified by the novel highway robbery perpetrated on a Chinaman in Pokfulam Road in broad daylight on Tuesday afternoon. The native came to town in the morning to collect some money due to him, and was returning home along Pokfulam Road in the afternoon when a number of the lawless gang who infest the western district sprang upon him and dragged him off the road into the scrub. Apparently they were up-to-date robbers, and did not hamper their movements by carrying about binding and gagging paraphernalia. THE EAST ASIATIC CO.

The British Consular Report on the trade Demark for 1904 states that the East Asiatio Company had a very prosperous year, and leas, it is said, be a able to pay a dividend of 8 per cent., although they have been obliged to close several of their branch offices in the East (in Manchuria and Shaughai) on account of the war. Their branch in Bangkok has been very profitable, on account of the large supplies of teak from the company's forests in the interior of Siam. This company possess large landed properties, coasting steamers, saw mills and dipping into the Patcheung Valley, south of tocks of various merchandise valued at £180,000and a further amount of £22,000 is used as working capital in the various forests for keeping elephants, &c., and a large staff. The trade with Singapore is believed not to have been profitable and to show a loss of $2.070 or more. The Shanghai braugh, on account of the war,

PRINCE BULOW'S WINDFALL. The following items are from the Berlin correspondence of the Daily Telegraph: --A Hambury millionaire, recently deceased, named Godefroy, was known to have bequeathed a considerable sum as a legacy to the Imperial Chancellor. The terms of his will are now published, and Fürst Bulow is declared to entitled to five and a half million mark s, about £270.000. Fürst Bulow received the news the day before the Keiser announced to him his elevation in the German peerage. The legacy will-be-welcome to Fürst Bulow, who was reputed to be not overburdened with wealth, and whose hospitality has always been generous. GREAT STORMS.

From various parts of Germany, especially from Silesia and the Harz Mountains, reports of devastating thunder-storms, accompanied byloss of life, have been received. In Oppau the Catholic church, a beautiful structure, has been completely demolished by lightning, and in the mountains of Upper Silesia a child and farmer have been killed by lightning. The railway lines in several districts have been completely washed away. In the Lausitz three young girls have ben killed, and much damage has been done to property throughout this entire area. In Halberstadt cloud-bursts have caused immense loss. Large districts are under water, and in some cases dwelling houses, barns, and other buildings have been washed away by the force of the waters.

DEATH OF A PRINCE. Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern, who had been staying with his son, Prince William, during the festivities on the occasion of the Crown Prince's wedding, is dead.

Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern was of the Catholic, non-relgning, though probably senior, branch of the family, and, of course, was a relative of the German Emperor. He was in his seventieth year. In 1861 he married the Infanta Antonia of Portugal.

The Chinese appear to have quite made up their minds to construct the Hankow-Canton railway themselves, and as one means to that end Toan Fang, Governor of Honan, together it must all come, perhaps in our day. with Viceroys Chang Chi-tung and Tsen permission to establish a railway lottery on the last few years, and that in spite of the fact that lines of the Hankow Lottery, the profits to be for several months in winter it is quite imposdevoted to the expenses of the line. In addition to the ordinary prizes, it is proposed that a certain percentage of the tickets shall be exchangeable for shares after the railway is interrupt, and with a determined start, all built, which will be a great inducement to the should progress steadily throughout the whole miblic to procure and hold as many as possible. _OORRESPONDENCE.

RAILWAY ENTERPRISE IN SOUTH

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS. SIR,-My apology for this communication, if any be needed, must be the exceptional importance of the subject as affecting the interests of this colony, compled with the very cursory manner in which the contemplated local line. Canton-Kowloon, has so far been

I remember, when in North-China some twenty years ago, having an introduction to the Engineer in Chief. I paid a visit to the works at Tong-ku where they were at that time very busy pushing forward the line to the Kai-Ping Mines and beyond. Being shown over. noticed amongst the rolling stock a number of splendid, third class carriages set on four-wheel tories, each having ten compartments and calcalated to hold 100 persons. After spending a few days in the neighbourhood. I journied further north, returning a couple of months later Imagine my surprise, when again visiting my friend at Tong-ku, to find all the beautiful car. riages I had seen, converted luto vertiable cattle trucks with nothing but a 42-inch board ing round the ends and sides. On speaking of the matter, my friend told me that the home design of carriage could not afford room for half the number of passengers offering and that they had to dispense with all unnecessary hamper so great was the demand of the travelling public of all classes. And, when our local line is ready, such I prophesy will be the experience also. The line from Canton to Fat-shan, in spite of its faulty construction, has yielded magnificent profits from the day of opening.

Now. as regards the Canton-Kowloon Line. One of your evening contemporaries recently ventured to give some particulars as to probable route: tunnelling through the Kowloon Hills beneath the craggy peak, known as the Lion's Head, thence through Shatin Valley skirting the promontory which divides Tide Cove from Tolo Herbour, &c. (Here, for many reasons which the surveyors will-no doubt discover, tunnel might serve better than the shore route). However, it is not my intention to attempt to solve engineering problems : what I propose to do is to open up a broader view of the railway question here in the south as it may directly effect the present and future prosperity of this

To begin with, let us divide the proposed line second is distinctly better. All naval men know into working sections of ten or twelve miles that Lionel Yexley's work is sure to be good, and we shall at once see that the first section | and Mr. Yexley is the editor. We like the tone from Kowloon is fraught with many difficulties of the paper, and have learned much from its involving the boring and construction of matter. The contributious are all as bright as tunnels, embankments, viaducts, bridges, &c. authoritative. We have elsewhere reproduced These operations mean a long time before an introductory article on the canteen system. the second section can be approached from this end: the third and fourth sections will of n ecessity be delayed much longer, and so on right along the line.

To obviate all this delay, it has occurred to me, knowing the country well, that from Castle Peak Bay a well-made single line via Piangshan, On:long, Sha-pat-houng and How-to-Kam-tin-hu, with a curve taking a north easterly direction through a cluster of villages by way o San-tin thence on to Sham-chun would not only be the means of opening up many thickly populated fertile valleys but, at the same time might be used with great profit for the trans port of ballast and railway material to a point at which the second and third sections meet in the neighbourhood of Sham-chan. This line would be about twenty miles in length and, as the country is nearly level, with few engineering difficulties, could be in working order within twelve months.

As regards Castle Peak Bay. With a small reclamation sufficient for wharves and godowns, any home steamers could go alongside, discharge their railway material into trucks, which would be convoyed to the forward sections in less than an hour. By this means the Canton-Kowloon line would be in course of construction at many points within a year, and a rapid completion would be the result. The twenty mile Valley line would at least pay all expenses and prove a great book to the country people.

There is yet another very important feature in the development of "Railway Enterprise" South China." I refer particularly to the neighbourhood of Sham-chun. According to the formation of the country, it would appear that the Fu-ti-au Gap, which is very easy of access, will prove the most convenient in passing from the hill district known as Ngau-tam-shan (2,000 feet). It is in this neighbourhood where, at no distant date, there should be an important junction service, as also a suitable site selected for a township. The junction should distribute in four or five directions, Canton, Hongkong, Castle Peak and at least one other which Lthink will follow almost immediately. I refer to the District adjoining Sun on, Kwei shin, with its Prefect and Magistrate, only forty miles distant; on the banks of Fast River (Kweichow and Kweishiu, about 100 miles from Canton) through a very thickly populated country, principally REVIEWS.

Frontier Mystery, by BERTRAM MITFORD. London : George Bell & Sons.

The "frontier "is where the river Tugela divides British ground from Zululand, and the author had plenty of justification for using the word "mystery," as the average reader will gallon through the chapters in order to discover what really happened, and what the witch doctors had to do with it. Mr. Mitford knows or seems to know the South African native very well, and as he is un adept at weaving plot and mystery, and has a fine imagination with which to evolve thrilling adventures, he gives a first class yare that will appeal to young and old of both sexes.

THE SIBERIAN RAILWAY.

NO SECOND TRACK TO BE LAID. Although the Ministry of War insists upon maintaining that the second track of the Siberian Railway will be laid down with all possible speed, yet the Ministry of Ways of Communication announces that the work will certainly not be carried out this year. At this moment the traffic is very heavy along the line, and one more " special train " could very easily throw the whole traffic into confusion. Thus. as there are neither workmen, material, nor rails ready along the line, all the labour and material will have to be taken from European Russian to Siberia by such "specials." Moreover, nearly the whole of the sum of £1,062,500 granted by the Government for doubling the track has been spent already in increasing the carrying capacity of the main line, of the Baikal Ring Railway, and of the Trans Baikal Railway. Instead of doubling the track-at least this year -the following work is to be carried out. Between Atchiusk and Taischet, the present zig-zag line, with its steep gradients, a distance of 360 miles, is to be rebuilt and made easier for the traffic; them, 100 new sidings are to be laid down of a total length of 100 miles, and the line between Samara and Ziatoust, on the south west Ural slope, is to be doubled .-

HERZOG UND FUERST.

Bülow is a name which has hitherto always sounded familiar to British ears as that of the corps commander who, under Blücher, struggled forward to save the Army of Wellington from ultimate defeat at Waterloo. And now it has acquired additional interest from the fact that the chief inheritor of this illustrious name. the fourth Chancellor of the new German Empire, Court von Bülow, has been raised by the Emperor, in his capacity as King of Prussia, to the rank of "Fürst;" or "Prince."

Prince Bülow, like Prince Bismarck, sounds very grand, and even regal, but, after all, there should be no misconception on the subject. For "Prince" is but an exaggerated translation of Fürst," which is otymologically the same word as our "first." In England, as well as in Germany, the relative rank of "Fürst" is only " marquis." as may be inferred from the fact that on his dismissal Bismarck was offered the title of "Dnke." of Lauenburg, which would have been no compliment to him at all had not the rank of a "Herzog," or dake, been superior to that of a "First," or prince.-Daily

M. DELCASSE'S RESIGNATION.

9th June.

The resignation of so able a statesman as Me Delease, while expected for a month or more, has caused widespread regret in many circles. The announcement came more as a blow then a surprise to the majority of Parisians who had been matching the progress of the Ministerial crisis for weeks past, expecting the inevitable any day. The first cause of the trouble was M Delcasses fixed habit of doing what he thought best, without consulting anybody. The immed. iate occasion of his downfall was the failure of the ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs in the recent negoti tions in Morocco, tacitly directed against Germany. The Kaiser crossed swords as it were with M. Delcassé and won For this, M leagues, who one and all had become most the unfriendly attitude of thusether Ministers towards M. D. leasté who will ever be remembered outside France as one of the best and scundest Ministers which the Republic over had ... Morocco -was not the main indictment against the ex-Foreign Minister. He had in the eyes of his colleagues and numerous enomies assumed too much authority in foreign affairs, and the fact that he persistently neglected to consult either the Cabinot or the Premier only rendered his position all the more untenable. M. Rouvier, who loves to direct affairs at first hand, bitterly resented M. Delcasse's strange attitude. It was merely a question of 'cobey or go." As the Minister refused to comply with his chief's. orders, there was no other course open to him but to resign. Had he been less obstinute, there is no doubt that he would not have had to resign -for Mororco could well have been arranged. The ex Minister and for so long maintained, throughout a series of Ministries, an altogether exceptional position in the French Cabinot, that possibly to France bersulf, and cortainly to her-

M. Delcasse-whom many confidently hope to see again before long at the Quai-d'Orssy-has had a most brilliant and unique eareer as Minister of Foreign Affairs. He claims to have done more for France than any of his numerous predecessors—a fact recognized by the outside would. His policy has been eminently sano inccept the tri-colour. - The Comte de Chambord and sound; while he has been at once moderate refused to accept any conditions as the price of and strong. It will be remembered that it was M. his recall, and was especially opposed to assuming Delcassé who so ably guided his country through the tri-colour in place of the white Bourbon the dangerous business of Eashods, and brought | flag. He further co-operated with Lord Lansdowne in removing all other causes of contention between Franco and Eugland, and in placing the relations of the two nations upon a basis of sound, and lasting friendship, let us Lone. This said, his disappearance from the political stage is sincerely deplored in most parts of the world. Fewer French statesmen here retain important office for so great longth of time; the ngh Cabinets have come and gone, M. Delcassé has remained.

European neighbours, he had come to b regarded as almost indispensable.

Though M. Rouvier, the Premier, has taken over tempora ily the work of M. Delcassé, and promised to maintain the entente cordiale, but not at the expense of friendship of Germany, and uphold the Franco-Russian alliance-worthless though it is, -M. Rouvier is not M. Delcasse whose name has become a household word with foreign nations. The welfare of France has to be studied; M. Ronvier will do well to remember the valuable services rendered by M. Delcassé. Many suggest giving the ex-Minister another chance, considering his ability and popularity.

THE FRENCH RICHMOND. Arnières, just outside Paris, has become the favourite rendezvous of all Parisian anglers. since the opening of the rod-fishing season. Strange to ray, the angler who stands watching on the banks of the Seine, to the evident amusement of gudgeons and minnows which play round his ficat, refusing scorofully his invitation to come and be killed, has a great hatred for the rowing man who splashes along. with his boat full of ladies. The home of the rowing man lies between Neuilly and Atgenteuil, and his haven of rest, like that of the angler, is at Asnières-that pretty little pirates drank and made mercy once upon a and tempting restaurants where the hissing frying pan awaits the Seine whitebait caught by mine liest with his cast net before the eyes. of the hungry Parisian. The sign boards are enough to give anyone an appetite. The rabbit, painted sitting in the sew pan, appears to take his fate as a necessary mariyidom. The promise of fritures and gibelettes draws thousands to the banks of the Beine on Sundays. Nothing charms a Parisian so much as to find a caterpillar in his soup, a spider crawling over the table cloth, or a moth flying round his glass. Not till then, does he really consider himself out in the country, while the sour wine he drinks enables him to digest rancid butter.

. Yet every inconvenience is met by a happy smile and an exclamation to the effect that a man should know how to bear worthily thecross of his pleasures whom he is tasting the delights of rural felicity, breathing the fresh country nir.

M. LOUBET'S RETIREMENT.

M. Loubot's retirement has now become reality. The President has almost completed his arrangements for leaving the splendour, and enjoy the simplicity of private life-what he has been so anxiously waiting to do. In addition to his chateau in the South of France, close to Montelimart, where he was bred and born, M. LE MORT DE DUC.

The death of the Duc d'Audiffret-Pasquier though hourly expected, has caused widespread regret throughout the country. He was one of the most remarkable statesman in France and, though a nobleman, enjoyed the respect and esteem of all his countrymen. Owing to his advanced age, he had long ago dropped out of contemporary politics, remaining but a life senator. Deceased was a strong opponent of the Imperial regime, he was no Republican, but a Constitutional Monarchist. After the fall of the 1 mpire, the Duc, who was leader of the Centre Droite, opposed Thiers, being one of those who brought about the great little man's downfull, in order to support the Duc imp ssible to bake them all-he has no room . d'Anmele's caudidature as President of the Republic. The scheme proved vain Marshal Mac Malion succeeded Thiers. Marshul was known to favour a restoration. and the late Due played a large part in the negotiations which ensued. Eurness. Monarchist as the Duc d'Audiffret Pasquier was, it was he who made the restoration impossible by declaring at the meeting of October 4th, 1873, that he was profoundly convinced that the restoration was possible only if the Monarchy was to be Constitutional and would refused the suggestion. Monarchy, the Duc d'Audiffret-Pasquier finally concluded, was an impossibility in France, so troubled no more about its restoration though he continued to

JAPAN'S NAVAL VICTORY

In drawing attention to the lessons to be learned from Japan's victory off Tsushima, Col. On land we have no fee to fear, and we can always reckon upon allies. But who would help us on cooking question. When that, and the bearing the seas in case of need? We certainly cannot possess the first Navy in the world, for Ger many is not rich enough. But ought it not to be possible for us to attain at least the second place among the navies of the world?"

COOKS AND COOKING.

BY "BOYAL NAVY," IN The Fleet.

I have been invited to state my views on the canteen question, and if possible to lay down some general rule that might be adopted with a vis. to overcoming the difficulties and disagreements that now agitate the service. committee is at present at work at the same canteens by itself the result of their labour will be nil; at least, that is my prophecy. An auxiliary food supply on board ship becomes Elysees Palace with all its many uncongenial necessary only because the proper food supply is inadequate—the more inadequate the main or legitimate supply, the greater the demand on the nuxiliary supply. The acute stage at which the conteen question has arrived is the measure of governmental indifference or incapacity to properly violual the Navy It is an effect bat victua ling is the cause.

From this it must not be supposed that I wish to imply that all the articles of consumption supplied through the Paymaster are bac in quality, b-cause they are not. Tea, cocca sugar, fresh boof (in England at least) are al of the very best-certainly the vegetables supplied with fresh ment leave much to be desired. Jam, or the greater portion of it. good. Preserved vegetables, ditto; and the whole of these are supplied in ample quantities! to satisfy the daily needs of any ordinary man And yet hundreds of thousands of pounds arspont annually at the various canteens. I wil give some figures later on. But naval men are not ginttons, yet to the independent enquirer the question must offer itself: " If the Government provide ample food supplies why this huge sum spent at with that poenling incility for spailing the ship for a balrorth of tar which soems to have characterised past Boords of Admiralty, they have, though supplying foods, neglected to provide proper facilities for cooking it. Thus is the sylicle elaborate michinery of victualling department of the Navy nullified by an obsolete galley; and the men seek consolution

at the cantoen or bumboat. This is a matter -that line-exercised the minds of naval-men eve since British keels ploughed the waters go back, however, no further than "eighteen handy it and was time " we find that the only qualification necessary, for ship's cook was his inability to perform any other duty. "Old Slushy " was his sobriquet, and he deserved it. The status of ship's cook has improved since then and some gade attempt has been made to tends him the art of cooking, but still left to struggle with the dinners of seven hundred men in a galby that is barely large enough to cook for seventy, and as a result he is forced to desperate expedients, of which the following is au example :-When the tin dishes contai ing the ment and perhaps, potatoes, are taken to the galley by the cooks of merses, the ship's cook, finding it takes the lidroff his copper in which are boiling potatoes, duff and what not, and piles the dishes up pyramid fashion over this, then covers the lot over with sacks to keep in the steam. The layman-will-get's me id-a of-what this food will be like when cooked; the steam from the copper in which an assortment of articles are being boiled, the sweat from the sacks running down from dish to dish adding its flavour in its own way, then just before seven bells the cook will take down the dishes and pop them in the oven to give the finishing touch. Result: meat as tough as leather. without any taste of beef, and only estable because the men are half fumished. It is not a question of ability, but facility. ship's cook is no more responsible for spoiling the food than the blue jacket mess cook who prepared it under difficulties while his messinates were scrubbing out t e mess. These little things are only known to the lower-deck and when the men complain they have quoted against them their allowance in pounds and pints. That does not represent the case by a

If the ship's cook finds it impossible to properly cook a joint of beef, how much more so will be find it to cook the preserved vegetablesthat now form a part of the men's dietary? That these are not bid in themselves the writer has proved by having them properly cooked on shore, when he found them, as a substitute for fresh vegetables, all shat could be desired. No mess, however, will take these from the steward if it can be avoided: they prefer to "leave them behind." "take u ." savings, and purchase other articles from the cauteen. And from thi many, who do not understand the true is wardness of the thing, jump to the conclusion that the B.B. likes savings. To show how little those responsible know of the requirements of the men it may be stated that before a Parliamentary Committee Sir Henry Yorke, Director of Victualling, declared that :--"The system of savings have oxis ed for so many years that it would create, I trank, a mutiny to interfere with it." Thus does the blue jacket get misrepresented, and a system perpetuated whose only virtue is that it does to some extent keep the discontent within bounds and official shortcomings. That serious troub! would ensue were savings abolished and no effort made to improve the present system of victualling and cooking is undoubted. should be distinctly understood, however, thut the men do not look with favour on Favings as savings, they simply "leave behind," certain articles either because such are not up to the proper standard, or, if "taken up," rendered uneatable by the system of cooking practised on board. preserved vegetables are an example of the latter, and for the former we may take biscuit as an example. The men will under no consideration have this if soft bread is by any means procurable, therefore they "leave behind" the biscuit, for which they get savings at the rate of ld. per lb., and buy soft bread from the

The very word "savings" is a misnomer and leads to confusion. These unacquainted with the inner life of the Navy believe that 'these "savings" are paid out at so much per man at the end of each month, and that they go to swell his private purse. the caterer of the mess, and are used to partly meet the canteen bill, and invariably have to be supplemented from the pockets of the men. To suggest that they are wedded to this system is to accuse them of lack of common sense Whatever faults the B B. may have he is not. taken in the lump, a fool, and if he could get eatable bread from the Paymaster for ald per 1b. he would not prefer to pay double the price for it elsowhere. It muy be said that so far I have not touched on canteens, with which this orticle is sup losed to deal. That is so. But to thoroughly understand the conteen question one must first understand that which has given rise to it- the it has on canteens, is properly understood, the problems connected with the latter become comparatively easy of solution.

If we are to accept the dictionary definition of "Cook" as "a person who prepares food for cooking," then a ship's cook is not a cook at all, but merely a person in charge of the range;

and it is here that the difficulty list The: prep ration of the food, which after all is the principal thing, is left to the men themselves, who take it in turns to do the work. But as neither facilities nor time are at their disposal the results are deplorable—the ship's cook has to face the blame. For years the cry has been -"Give us bottor cooks and be ter cooking facilities." and were this done many articles of the official rations now "left behind "for savings task, but as they are taking the question of would be used, and the demand on the cauteun would diminish to a corresponding extent.

CHINESE PROTECTORATE REPORT

The annual report on the Chinese Protectorate for 1905 save the most important event of the year was the ret rement of Mr. G. T. Hare C.M.G., L. S. O., through ill-health, Mr. Hare. served in all twenty years, and since Mr. Pickering's time (Pi-ki-lin) no Protector, save Mr Barnes, has ever acquired such a wide influence among all classes of Chinese as Mr. Have (bo-tai-jin). The report shows a falling off in immigration of seven per cent, the total being 2.4,796. The falling off is attributed mainly to better harvests in China, and Mr. Barnes thinks the South African recruiting has not affected our labour fields. The proportion of female immigrants is slowly rising, a fact commented on with satisfaction, but the report does not show whether this increase is due to 'arger numbers of n satisfactory class or ino. The number of unpaid passengers, who are coolies who get free passages on the understanding that they will enter into a contract on arrival, showed a decrease, and it is noticeable that this class of immigrant has dropped in less station. He is sixty years of age, having been than ten years from 23,249 to 10,930. The drop in the lieutenant be commanded the naval guard to figures for Siamese and non-federated states is notable, the figures for 1903 being 2,905. Agricultural labourers, miners and general unskilled labourers were the most numerous Five unlawful societies were dealt with locally. thirty men being banished. Two societies had assumed the names and ritual of the Triad, but Mr. Barnes anticipates no revival of the Old Dangerous Societies. The only trouble given how is by knots of bad characters who live on blackmail. Mr. Barnes calls them Long Firms rather than organised societies. During the year 65 aliens were banished as against 50 in 1903. 28 were habitual criminals, the rest society offenders. Action had been taken to check the evil of gambling which had become very rife.

" It is noticeable that the education which the local Chinese now enjoy fails to afford to the majority of them any form of unus-ment, and Sarvice Institution in 1910, and a miral it is regrettable that they have no idea of a superintendent of Naval Reserves on May 21st reality each messes savings are paid in bulk to secial club except as a place for gambling, and in the same year. HAMBURG SHIPPING. Sir W. Ward, in a report to the Foreign Office on the trade of Hamburg, states that there was a decrease in the total value of the exports to the United Kingdom last year, while there was at the same time a slight increase in the total value of the imports from the United Kingdons. The total tonings of the British vessels entering Hamburg in 1904 considerably exceeded that of the previous year, and was the largest on record. Though the results of last year's year the latter steed lower even than in 1903. The war in Enstern Asia no doubt brought profits to a limited number cof German as well as of other neutral shipowners by favourable sales and charterings of their vossels; but the demand for shipping arising from the Russo-

In view of the cary low, and at times almost minous, rates of Treight, together with the frequently operous condition of affreightment for tramp" steamers in this and other countries. the "German Association for Protecting the Interests of Shipowners" has, during the past 82 months, been endeavouring to form an international combination of owners of such v-ssels for the purpose of preventing the rates of freight from reaching too low a figure in future. Whether these efforts will lead to any result remeius to be seen, but it may be remarked that, as is probably well known, an international combination of owners of sailing vessels has already been established which, it is stated, now comprises 80 per cent. of all British, German, and Fronch owners of sea-going vailing ship, who have improved their position by fixing the minimum rates of freight acceptable by them. As a consequence of this agreement, a slight improvement is stated to have taken" place last year in the sailing ship freights to an Francisco and to nitrate ports in South America, and it is expected that this improvement will now extend to other parts of the Japanese War and from the employment of German steamers in the transport of troops to importance to influence the freight market as

In spite of the, in some respects, unfavourable condition of the shipping trade, the aggregate number and tonnage of tue sea-going ships of all nations entering the port of Hamburg is 1904 was the largest on record, the total registered tonnage having er eeded; that of the ships entering in 1903 by 455,000 tons. aggregate number of sea-going ships which entered this port last year was 14, 59, and their total registered tonnage 9,611,732 tons; and the aggregate number which cleared was 4812, their total registered tonnage having been 9,611,903 tons register. Among the ships. entering the port last year 9,577 were steamers measuring together 8,647,000 tons, and 5,282 were sailing vessels measuring together 974,732 tons register; 10,368 ships of together 8,738,422 tons entered with cargoes, and 4,491 ships of together 872,110 tous entered in ballast.

No newspapers dare print in opposition parties; but the following doenwith impunity by a Moscow evening paper, which throws ridicule upon the hopes of the party therein expressed. In the absence of the punishment, by administrative process without any form of law, which speedily follows upon the publication of anything displeasing to the authorities, it must be taken that this extraordinary document has the tacit approval of the Bureaucracy, in whose interests it appeals to the lowest ranks of the population of Russia. The following is a faithful translation of the original " Proclamation."

" PROCLAMATION.

This extraordinary appeal to the lowest depths of Russian ignorance is issued anonymously. Its general tone and even individual phrases are to be found in the columns of the Moscow Gazette, a subsidised Government organ, and the Russkoe Delo, edited by Messrs. Gringmuth and Sharapov respectively. Typographic experts declare that there is no doubt the leastet Sin,-The world is kept well-informed con- was printed on the presses of the Moscow

The Russian Bureaucracy is at | "Monarchical Party," whose arowed aims are pains to advertise the infamy of such us dare the restoration of the status que ante bellum, a oppose its despotic will. What is less under policy which, if practicable, can only mean a stood outside. Russia is the desperate length | return to the days of the Iron Nicholas of half to which the Bureauciacy is now prepared in century ago. The leaders of this party are to which the Bureauch and the proteges of the late notorious Minister of the (the Chanceller) attached much importance to the late of the principles of political freedom. The follow- Interior, M. von Plehwe, "executed" by the ing document tells its own tale. In its revolutionaries some twelve mouths ago. The original form it is a breadside of the kind members are mostly place-holders under the known in Russin as "Proclamations." Any Bureaucracy together with a prinkling of any of the "opposition" parties of Russia, are of "Aliens," the word used in Russian equally summarily dealt with by the authorities, im- signifying "Foreigners": if this proclamation prisoned, exiled, and otherwise maltreated as were to have the effect presumably hoped for "malcontents." The distributors of this docu- by its authors, it is too much to expect that an excited mob of peacentry will make any distinction between foreigners proper and Russian Russia any proclamation emanating from the "aliens." Therefore there seems ground for auticipating danger to the lives of foreigners ment, ranking as "leval," has been printed resident in outlying parts of the Empire, small towns and rural districts. In the larger towns it is probable the teaching of this "Union' will fail entirely owing to the superior strength of the workmen, who are better informed than to credit such statements as the above "Proclamation " makes about the educated classes."

> The calculation of the party ultimately responsible for the policy advocated in this appeal to the ignorant is, in Russia, both simple and practical. It is hoped to rouse the proistariat and utilise them to cow the educated or superior classes, the Government meanwhile standing aside, playing Gallio, in convenient ignorance of passing events. This eminently Russian method was illustrated not long ago during the Jewish Massacres at Kishinov, and still more recently at Baku. On a smaller scale it is being illustrated almost daily in one or other of the smaller centres of European Russia, When the common herd of the ignorant have terrorised the intelligentia the Bureaucracy in the natural course of things Russian, will send in the military to "restore order," killing freely in the name of outraged ustice. The outer world of civilisation. to whose comments the Russian is peculiarly sensitive, must approve even the most drastic methods of punishment for those guilty of brutally maltreating their betters. It is, of neck, three inches long and about an inch deep. -course, hoped that Europe will never know (and if suspecting she will never be in a position to prove culpability) the secret springs which have set the proletarist in motion. The above "Proclamation" exhibits pretty plainly some of the secret movements of the machinery : for which reason it should be given the widest publicity outside the Russian Empire.

CABLE RATES TO THE FAR EAST.

DEPUTATION TO MR. A. CHAMBERLAIN.

On June 8th at the Treasury, the Chancellor of the Exchequer received a deputation of members of Parliament and business men, who desired to press for a reductio in the cable rates to India, China, and West Africa. Sir Edward Sussoon. Chairman of the Telegraphs Committee of the House of Commons, introduced the deputation. Mr. Austen Chamberlain, in reply, said the subjects brought before him often, in their individual aspects, touched more nearly other departments than his own, and he would convey them to the Government departments concorned. There had been some indication of conflicting views among the deputation, and even in the mind of the same gentleman. He possessed. Those were, in the main, due to private enterprise, and for himself he would never choose Government enterprise in these matters, where private enterprise showed itself capable and willing to undertake the work. Although he would gladly welcome a reduction in cable rates anywher, he could not see that B itish rates to West Africa, for instance, compared unfavourably with the rates to French possessions in West Africa. As to Iudia, he did not think the great increase in cable traffic. in recent years was wholly due to the reduction in rates. He could inform the deputation, however, that it a few mouths the rate to India would be reduced from 2s. 6d. to 2s. a word. Reference had been made to the working of the Pacific cable, especially with regard to the action of Australia. A conference was shortly to meetto discuss the matter, and it would be premature and almost importinent to enter in o the arguments on one side or the other. As the deputation withdrow Mr. Chamberlain announced that the cable rates to Egypt had been reduced to

> A FIGHT WITH A CHINESE PANTHER.

A few days ago, on entering a small town in Hupeb, the N. C. Daily News' correspondent's advent was looked upon as heaven-sent, and he was heartily welcomed. He writes: "On enquiring why I was thus greeted, the inhabitants told me of a fight with a panther (or tiger as they called it) on the previous day. The beast came down from the hills, and attacked a man in the fields. On others coming to his aid; the panther bolted into a village, and took refuge in a house. The inhabitants fastened the door from the outside, and then a siege commenced. The village was only a short distance from the town of Luchiapu, so many of the young men went out to take part in the frey. Some genius suggested putting lighted torches through the window. This being done, the panther made a dash, and the sparks set fire to some straw on a bed. In a few minutes the house was on fire. The panther made a dash through the low roof, and fell amongst the crowd. Six men bore traces of tooth and claw ere the beast was killed. One man had an ugly wound at the nape of his The sinew of his arm seemed to be severed, and he could not move the left arm. There were smaller wounds on different parts of his body, Dressings were in big demand, and after attending to the wounded, I went to the scone of the fray. The house was almost wrecked, and charred wood lay all round, but the propietor seemed quite happy. Strange to say, no one in the house had b en injured, and the sale of the panther's skin, flesh and bones, would pay for house repairs, and leave the proprietor a profit. The skin of the beast was nailed out on a door, and measured almost 5 feet from the head to the root of the tail"

AN: "INDEPENDENCE DAY " DISAPPOINTMENT.

The Manila Times reports that thousands of people were disappointed on the 4th July about the balloon ascension, which failed to take place. It was scheduled for 10.30 a.m. Aeronaut Gibbs was on hand at 10 a.m. but was obliged to return to his home in Paco for his parachute which he had forgotten. It was almost twelve o'clock when he returned in company with Mr. Probasco, one of the members of the committee on arrangements. Gibbs proceeded at once to complete arrangements for the serial trip, preparing his parachute and inflating his balloon. By the time the big balloon was inflated it was after 12 o'clock; the weather had changed and rain was falling, which greatly interfered with operations, the big air ship gradually dropping over to one side from the effects of the rain thus allowing the gas to

The weather was ideal for the asc at during the early morning hours, a light breeze blowing in from the bay. The walls around the old city were througed with people and thousands congregated along Calle Bagumbayan, many of whom remained through the drenching shower, until the balloon had been completely emptied of gas.
